For example, if an individual is prepared to teach Elementary Education and Mathematics, that individual should be counted in both subject areas. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major or subject area, you may leave the cell blank. Please use the "Other" category sparingly, if there is no similar subject area or academic major listed. In these cases, you should use the text box to describe the subject area(s) and/or the academic major(s) counted in the "Other" category.

If your IHE offers both traditional and alternative programs, be sure to enter the program completers in the appropriate reports. For the traditional report, provide only the program completers in traditional programs within the IHE. For the alternative report, provide only the program completers for the alternative programs within the IHE.

After entering the teachers prepared data, save the page using the floating save box at the bottom of the page.

Teachers Prepared by Subject Area

Please provide the number of teachers prepared by subject area for academic year 2023-24.

For the purposes of this section, number prepared means the number of program completers. "Subject area" refers to the subject area(s) an individual has been prepared to teach. An individual can be counted in more than one subject area. If no individuals were prepared in a particular subject area, please leave that cell blank. (§205(b)(1)(H))

What are CIP Codes?

No teachers prepared in academic year 2023-24

If your program has no teachers prepared, check the box above and leave the table below blank (or clear responses already entered).

What are CIP codes? The Classification of Instructional Programs (CIP) provides a taxonomic scheme that supports the accurate tracking and reporting of fields of study and program completions activity. CIP was originally developed by the U.S. Department of Education's National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) in 1980, with revisions occurring in 1985, 1990, and 2000 (<https://nces.ed.gov/ipeds/cipcode/Default.aspx?y=55>).

Teachers Prepared by Academic Major

Please provide the number of teachers prepared by academic major for academic year 2023-24. For the purposes of this section, number prepared means the number of program completers. "Academic major" refers to the actual major(s) declared by the program completer. An individual can be counted in more than one academic major. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major, please leave that cell blank. \(\$205\(b\)\(1\)\(H\)\)

Please note that the list of majors includes several "Teacher Education" majors, as well as several noneducation majors. Please use care in entering your majors to ensure education-specific majors and non-education majors are counted correctly. For example, if an individual majored in Chemistry, that individual should be counted in the "Chemistry" academic major category rather than the "Teacher Education–Chemistry" category.

8. Describe your institution’s most successful strategies in meeting the assurances listed above:

Administrators and faculty from the EPP maintain regular contact with P-12 administrators and teachers through joint supervision of field experiences, attendance at P-12 administrative meetings, and collaboration on special projects. These types of contacts allow members of the unit to keep abreast of changes in the needs and expectations of local districts. One area of particular need in regional schools has been special education. In response to that need for more special educators, the unit worked to recruit more candidates in special education and has made curricular changes that have allowed elementary education candidates to more easily meet certification requirements in special education. In response to shortages in some secondary content areas, the Department of Middle and Secondary Education has developed a master’s degree in teaching in STEM. The unit has a regional advisory board, populated by school stakeholders in the university’s service area, which create a conduit for communication between the EPP and school districts. In addition, the unit regularly evaluates data generated by surveys of cooperating teachers working with candidates and, also, surveys of first-year teachers and their administrators. In combination, these sources of information suggested that the following are areas in which our programs might improve: 1) the ability to fully integrate certain types of technology, 2) classroom management, and 3) accurate use of assessment data to shape instruction. In response, program faculty revised the curriculum to address these areas. The Exceptional Child program is part of the Early, Elementary, and Special Education Department. All Exceptional Child majors complete a rigorous curriculum, which includes meeting the requirements for certification in Mild/Moderate Cross Categorical K-12 and Elementary Education (grades 1-6). Students complete coursework, field experiences and licensing exams that align with the Missouri Teacher Standards, the Council for Exceptional Children (CEC), and the Association of Childhood Education International (ACEI). Meeting standards for both CEC and ACEI helps to ensure that teacher candidates in the Exceptional Child program have the coursework and field experiences necessary to effectively deliver instruction in core content areas. All teacher candidates, except for Exceptional Child majors, take Psychology and Education of the Exceptional Child (EX390) in which the 14 disability areas are studied. Candidates also adapt lesson plans under the direction of an instructor trained in special education. In addition candidates learn about the roles of different members of Individualized Education Program (IEP) committees, as well as their responsibilities for enacting IEPs in the classroom. Another focus of the course is the appropriate collaboration between professionals, community organizations, and families in order to serve the needs of students with exceptional learning needs. In addition, differentiating instruction for students with special needs--including those encompassed by the parameters of special education--is addressed in multiple courses in all educator preparation programs. Meeting the needs of LEP students is also addressed in multiple courses, and recent revisions have strengthened that emphasis throughout all programs. Teacher candidates have the opportunities to apply the knowledge of differentiated instruction, generally, and working with Limited English Proficient students, specifically, in their field experiences. All teacher preparation programs are structured to provide teacher candidates with knowledge and experiences relevant to learning to teach students from a variety of socioeconomic and geographic backgrounds. In some programs this topic is concentrated in a stand-alone course while other programs integrate it throughout several courses. Candidates complete multiple performance tasks during field and clinical experiences in which they must identify relevant contextual factors. They are encouraged, in particular, to analyze the ways in which socioeconomic status and geographical designations (e.g. rural and urban) might influence student learning. In addition, the Office of Field Experiences (OFE) works to ensure that teacher candidates participate in clinical experiences in diverse settings. The OFE uses a database of field placements to accurately track the types of field and clinical experiences in which teacher candidates participate, thereby making it easier to ensure that candidates work in schools of different wealth levels and in schools with different geographic characteristics.

Annual Goals: Mathematics

Each institution of higher education (IHE) that conducts a traditional teacher preparation program (including programs that offer any ongoing professional development programs) or alternative route teacher preparation program, and that enrolls students receiving Federal assistance under this Act, shall set annual quantifiable goals for increasing the number of prospective teachers trained in teacher shortage areas designated by the Secretary or by the state educational agency, including mathematics, science, special education, and instruction of limited English proficient students.

Use of Technology

1. Provide the following information about the use of technology in your teacher preparation program. Please note that choosing 'yes' indicates that your teacher preparation program would be able to provide evidence upon request. \(\$205\(a\)\(1\)\(F\)\)

Does your program prepare teachers to:

a. integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction

☒ Yes

☐ No

b. use technology effectively to collect data to improve teaching and learning

☒ Yes

☐ No

c. use technology effectively to manage data to improve teaching and learning

☒ Yes

d. use technology effectively to analyze data to improve teaching and learning

2. Provide a description of the evidence that your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction, and to use technology effectively to collect, manage, and analyze data in order to improve teaching and learning for the purpose of increasing student academic achievement. Include a description of the evidence your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to use the principles of universal design for learning, as applicable. Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the four elements listed above are not currently in place.

All teacher candidates at Southeast Missouri State University take courses that incorporate the 2017 ISTE Standards for Educators and have significant emphasis on the use of instructional technology. In these courses, students are introduced to specific technology tools, provided opportunities to use these tools in educational contexts, and led through the exploration of philosophical and ethical issues related to using technology in classrooms. Additionally, a requirement to use instructional technology is embedded in almost every course in the EPP's programs. To facilitate the increased use of instructional technology, the EPP has interactive whiteboards, technology packs, screen mirroring tools, and web conferencing equipment in all classrooms and has implemented an ever-evolving educational technology hub called The EDvolution Center. All teacher candidates are exposed to, and interact with, technology tools designed to collect, manage, and analyze data. The university's learning management system, Canvas, provides students with experience in data collection from the student's perspective and enables the students to see various ways, depending on instructor preference, data might be collected. Specifically, during the process of completing multiple performance assessments during field and clinical experiences, teacher candidates use digital technology to organize and analyze data to improve learning in future lessons. The EPP revised/added many courses. Revised or new courses such as EL 420, Assessment and Data Analysis, include an emphasis on using technology in the assessment process. EL 300, Assistive and Instructional Technology in a Universally Designed Learning Environment, builds a strong foundation of UDL principles for teacher candidates which is then implemented throughout the program. In response to many K-12 school districts moving to 1:1, the EPP has instituted a 1:1 program in teacher preparation. This 1:1 program integrates the use of tablets, laptops, and Chromebooks into all courses within the educator preparation program, emphasizing three key steps: Tech for You (candidate use), Tech for Us (professional collaboration), and Tech for Them (instructional use). The EDvolution Center provides professional development resources, technology tools for teacher candidates to expand their knowledge or unique and emerging teacher education technology, and collaborative spaces for the co-creation of lesson plans and projects. The Center includes a Maker Space based on the design thinking process with various experiential learning tools. Currently, The EDvolution Center houses 3D printers, VR goggles, AR equipment, green screen recording technology, various coding tools (Cubetto, Ozobots, Dash, Kai, Marty, etc), laser cutting/engraving, 360-degree video equipment, a lightboard video creation studio, a podcasting booth, and a standalone virtual reality room. The College of Education, Health, and Human Studies Educator Preparation Program was awarded the 2022 AACTE Best Practice Award for the Innovative Use of Technology and is recognized as an Apple Distinguished School 2022-2025. Within the region and state, the institution is viewed as a leader in using and showcasing technology within classrooms. The EDvolution Center is a learning hub not only for teacher candidates but for regional educators as well. The Center hosts P-12 professional development events and hosts P-12 school field trips. Over 6,800 P-12 students, educators, teacher candidates, community members, and faculty have toured and/or attended professional development workshops and/or completed technology challenges within The EDvolution Center.

Teacher Training

1. Provide a description of the activities that prepare general education teachers to:

a. Teach students with disabilities effectively

All teacher candidates take Psychology and Education of the Exceptional Child in which the 14 disability areas are studied. Candidates also adapt lesson plans under the direction of an instructor trained in special education. Students learn the instructor's role and responsibilities for enacting IEP directives in the classroom. Another focus of the class is the collaboration between professionals , community organizations, and families in order to serve the needs of students with exceptional learning needs. Differentiating instruction for students with special needs - including those encompassed by the parameters of special education - is addressed in multiple courses throughout each program.

b. Participate as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

All teacher candidates take Psychology and Education of the Exceptional Child in which the 14 disability areas are studied. Candidates learn about the roles of different members of the IEP committees, as well as their responsibilities for enacting IEP directives in the classroom. Another focus of the class is the collaboration between professionals, community organizations, and families in order to serve the needs of students with exceptional learning needs.

c. Effectively teach students who are limited English proficient.

Meeting the needs of Limited English Proficeint students is addressed in multiple courses. Teacher candidates have opportunities to apply the knowledge of differentiated instruction, generally, and working with LEP students in their field experiences.

2. Does your program prepare special education teachers?

- ☒ Yes
- ☐ No

If yes, provide a description of the activities that prepare special education teachers to:

a. Teach students with disabilities effectively

Exceptional Child Education candidates complete coursework and participate in field experiences that will prepare them to work specifically with learners with exceptionalities. Teacher candidates complete exceptional child and elementary coursework during their programs and work collaboratively with other teacher candidates preparing to become general education teachers.

b. Participate as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities

IEP components are a part of all exceptional child coursework. Students are guided through and assessed on using data to write a formal IEP during Assessment and Techniques of Teaching Children with Exceptionalities. In Introduction to Children with Exceptionalities, candidates identify the appropriate members of an IEP team and explain the role of each member. The candidates learn the purpose of the IEP, as well. In Assessment and Techniques of Teaching Children with Exceptionalities candidates help write an IEP. During field and clinical experiences, candidates work closely with cooperating teachers to carry out the guidelines of specific IEPs.

c. Effectively teach students who are limited English proficient.

Candidates complete coursework to become familiar with language diversity and working with diverse families in Language Development of the Exceptional Child. Meeting the needs of Limited English Proficient students is addressed in Diversity in American Schools. Exceptional Child majors complete coursework specifically focused on working with LEP students in Language Development of the Exceptional Child. Candidates preparing to teach in middle and secondary contexts become familiar with instructional strategies and literacy strategies to support English Language Learners in two literacy courses, Content Area Literacy and Instructional Interventions for Students Who Struggle with Literacy.
