WORKS IN PROGRESS

Articles

At present my research continues to focus on the region of East Central Europe, with a particular focus on the region of Galicia, present day Western Ukraine. I am particularly interested in the murder of the Jews of Galicia during the Second World War. I am currently writing an article on the importance of local collaboration in the implementation of the Holocaust, focusing in particular on the various ways whereby this collaboration manifested itself and what factors motivated the collaboration of the local non-Jewish population in the murder of the region's Jews by the Germans.
